Charitable Donation Update

North London Hospice

As part of our ongoing commitment to supporting charities through our Metal Recycling Scheme, we were proud to donate £5,000 to North London Hospice, nominated by Minal from our Head Office team.

North London Hospice provides free palliative and end of life care to people across North London, supporting patients with life limiting conditions and helping their families through incredibly difficult times. Its aim is to help people live as well as possible for as long as possible, providing comfort, care and support when it matters most.

Providing care when it matters most

Each year, North London Hospice receives referrals for more than 3,500 people with life limiting conditions. Its work spans both inpatient and community care, supporting people in the hospice and in their own homes.

Last year alone, the hospice admitted 315 patients to its Inpatient Unit and made nearly 22,000 visits through its community palliative care services.

While the hospice cannot cure every illness, its teams provide pain relief, comfort and compassionate care, helping patients and their loved ones make the most of the time they have together.

A personal connection...

North London Hospice has been supporting the local community for many years, providing compassionate care to patients and ongoing support to their families and loved ones.

Its impact can be felt well beyond the care it provides to patients, helping families navigate some of life's most difficult moments. This personal impact was what inspired Minal from our Head Office team to nominate the hospice for support through our Charitable Metal Recycling Scheme.

Supporting the future of care

North London Hospice relies on the generosity of its local community to help fund its services. Although around a third of its funding comes from the NHS, donations and income from its charity shops are essential in meeting the cost of providing care, which now exceeds £16 million a year.

The hospice is also undertaking a major redevelopment of its 30 year old Inpatient Unit, creating a modern environment that better meets the needs of patients and their families. This project represents an important investment in the future of palliative and end-of-life care for people across North London.

Our £5,000 donation will help support the hospice's vital work, contributing to the care and comfort it provides to patients and families when they need it most.

Making a difference

We're proud that our Charitable Metal Recycling Scheme can support North London Hospice and the invaluable work it does within our local community.

We would like to thank Minal for nominating the hospice and the North London Hospice team for the care, compassion and support they continue to provide to patients and their loved ones.
